

Getting to “the village” at Long beach from Krabi Airport

At the exit of Krabi Airport there is a parking lot. When driving out of the parking lot towards the main road there is a cross road. At this cross road you should make a left turn (•1). While driving through this crossroad it is important that you reset the odometer of your car.

You are now driving on the main highway number 4, and the first town is named Nuea Khlong. In this town there are two cross roads with traffic lights. At the second traffic light you should turn right (•2) by following the road signs to “Yau beach”. The odometer will be showing 4km as you make this first turn.

The road you are now driving on will go pass a couple of small villages where you are highly recommended to make a stop to buy vegetables and fruit at bargain prices.

When the odometer show 17.3 kilometer you will again see the blue road signs to “Yau Beach”, and at this point you will exit the main road with a right turn (•3).

Then, after 1.5 kilometer the odometer will be at 18.8km, and there is a small community consisting of a few houses. You will pass through this community by first, making a right turn (•4) at 18.8km, and then exit that road at 19.2km by making a left turn (•5).

The road you have now entered will take you through breathtaking scenery of a few mountain tops that Krabi is famous for. If you are lucky, you may even meet a few of the local wild monkeys which are resting by the small white bridge you see as you start driving between two of these mountains.

Once you have passed the mountains you will enter a flat and open area, and as the main road takes a sharp right curve you will notice a small yellow house (22.4km). This house is in fact the local police station, but this is hard to notice as it is written in Thai only. Just by this house you will exit the road by driving straight forward (•6).

When the odometer reaches 23.1 km you should follow the road and make a left turn (•7), then after another two kilometer you will see a very small mosque on your right hand. As the odometer shows 25.1km you then make a right turn (•8) just after the mosque.

Another 500 meter will then take you to the front gate of “the village” (25.7 kilometer), and another 500 meter straight forward will take you to long beach. Enjoy your holliday!
